WHAT 18 CHLORODYNK?—Dr. J. COLLIS

BROWNE'S Chlorodyne is a liquid taken in drops secording to age. It invariably relieves pain, of whatever sind, creates a calm refrashing sleep, allays irritation of the servous system, when all other remodies fall, leaving no add effects like optum or landanum, and can be taken when nose other on be televated. Its wake in seving life in innacy is not seally estimated; a few drops will subdus the irritation of testhing, provent and arrest convulsions, cure whooping cough, speams, and fistus at once.

Among invalids it allays the pain of neuralgia, rheumatizm, goat, ètc. It soothes the weary achings of consumptice; relieves the soreness of the chest, cough, and expectoration; and curve all chest affections, such as salums, irronchitis, palpitation, &c. It instantly checks

CORD EROTHERS PATENT WASHING HATS.

Victorian Eshibition, 1861, First Class; London International Eshibition, 1862, award for originality and novelty.—Our theory of a hat for a warm climate is that it should be absorbent and ventilating throughout. If it possess those qualities it must be capable of being washed, otherwise it will be speedily destroyed or rendered unfit for war. The process for rehabilitating the hat must also be so simple that ordinary laundresses can block and press them. Our rinc block makes this easy and overtain. The use of those hats subjects the head to to the same healthful conditions as other parts of the body, i. a., cotton and finned are brought into direct contact with the part covered. The body of the hat consists of five to seven wove musterials, of which one is all wool finned, the external material being lines. The luxury to the weaters is such that any person adopting them will not readily be persuaded to wear any other. Their colour is so adapted to all styles of must that is summer it is as becoming as block is at all other essuence, while their durability is so great that with ordinary onre they must wear two or three times as long as any other hat made. In view of these desirable qualities we confidently expect these has with Australians will become uniforal.

Directions for washing, blocking, and preceing expect these hats with Australians will become national Directions for weaking, blocking, and pressing The sine of both hat and block is marked on them. The lates are to be weaked in the tub, not on the block, and should be scaled, not bolled, then stiffing them with white starch, and draw them hard down on the block; dry them in the sun; when nearly dry strip them from the block and pull them down again till dry, then sub more starch into the sim and green the brim only on the top side, while wirm from the fine, set the lorin in the shape professed. The habeset damid be presented from the under side. The routes is blocked on the explorer block, and the peak pulled sul, the curtain only being thread. These hastractions are outly-clent to reader a inundrous supert with one or two brinks. Sole Wholesida Agents for flow disnth Welessand Quantelend, Mosers. JACKSON and HURLEY, Wysperdequane, Sydney.

fad de in nothing else he would discrete much praise for the charming walks and gardens he has formed. Such were my impressions as I tolled up under a burning sun from the museum to the site of the exc. valions,—the principal object of my visit. Itosa's first idea was to discover the natural arm of the hill, and the general plan of the buildings erected upon it. As regards the former, it is evident that there were two elevations, with, of course, a valley but ween them. As to the latter, at the base of the wotten hill still recain some of the tuf's walls which were the ancient boundary of the city of Romulus. Their direction is well pointed out by classical writers ard there was no difficulty, therefore, in recognising them. From this point is an a-cent or claims to the eld Porta Romana, which was used up to the time of the Emprors. On this western extremity, too, were built the Palaces of Tiberius and Caligula, the latter period was erected another palace covering up fine freecees and arabesques which have just been brought to light. It was Augustus who built the first Imperial Palace, and the spot he chase was the valley between the two hills. On its being burn, the willy sovereign appealed to the Provinces for contributions towards erecting another place, promising that in return he would throw open certain portions of it to the public. The money was forthcoming, but the palace was not opened, and how the little dispute was settled between Emperor and subjects it belongs not to this letter to say.

To give a general idea of the plan of the buildings on this Eternal Hill, it only remains to be said that, late in the time of the Casars, Vespasian filled up the valley in which the Palace of the Palatine, which I have developed, not in order of time, but un topographical order to suit the convenience of the visitor who, entering from the Forum, commences his researches at the west and continues them to the east.

What we suggest is this.—that a sum of money be voted for the process of clearing the rivers Darling, &c., and that each of the settlers (who would be glad to do it) be entrasted with charge of the work, and to see that he river in cleared as far as their individual runs extend; if these sections cannot see to this personally they have superintendents and servents who can and would act on their behalf. The settlers are anxious for this to be done—and we do not bring them into question without their authority for doing so—and from their strong desire to carry out this measure and co-operate to its completion, vis., making the rivers and co-operate to its completion, vis. making the rivers and co-operate to its completion, vis. making the rivers and co-operate to its completion, vis. making the rivers and at this time labour is generally cheap, they could them states, they are also on the spot when the rivers are low, and at this time labour is generally cheap, they could them states, they are also on the spot when the rivers are low, and at this time labour is generally cheap, they could them states of wages a portion of the numerous labouring men traversing these districts. TORRES STRAIT BY THE BLIGH ENTRANCE AND CHANNEL .- PROPOSED BEACON ON IPILI REEF.

CHANNEL.—PROPOSED BEACON ON IFILI REEF.

(To the Editor of the Nantical Magazine)

Tun safe passage of Bligh Channel, through Torres Strait, in comparison with the unsafe one by Raine Island, having yet to be established against the prejudice of certain agents at Sydney, we insert another voyage by it from a relative of our exteemed correspondent, Captain Kennedy. In our volume for 1860 will be found the previous voyage of that officer, one repiete with information, and from which we are gird to learn that several of our renders have profited. Like Captain Kennedy they have found the advantage of Bligh Channel, and that, compared with the chance of being caught on a see reef and being brought may be some unknown rocky head afterwards, it is actual safety. As he justly says "there is no difficulty whatever, every danger can be seen from the deck." Thirteen wrecks seen on one voyage by the Raine Island Passage serve well no doubt to heep up the insurtance by that channel, while in that by Bligh Entrance there is nothing of the kind to be seen.

Since this Easine Island Channel has been unworthily dignified by a beacon in the early days of this outer roots, we trust that the rounths of our correspondent in reference to a beacon on the light Best will not be four true that navigation with as much real light Channel. There is safety in every part of that and if a ship should ground she may be easily got to effect the safety in every part of the safety in every part of the passage street for the Raine Island beacon in really a tray for the Raine Island beacon in the safety in every part of that the passage street of the passage street the safety in every part of the passage street these, passage street these, passage street these, passages street these, passages street these, pa

I have not the elightest doubt but that the two places where the heavy breakers are, are the same that the sand banks ten feet high eccupied. We saw the N.W. breaker until 3h. 35. p m. This part of the passage was very tedious, as we did not get any trade winds until in 67 35 S.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1963.

THE thick clouds gathering around the frontiers of Canada seem to portend an approaching storm. There have often been similar indica-tions. The last hour of British rule in America has been frequently foretold; but somehow or other the storm has passed, and the prophets have retreated. A hope suggested by a passion scarcely ever dies but with those who cherish t; and it is certain, whatever may be before us it; and it is certain, whatever may be before us, that the loss of the Canadas and the general diminution of the British Empire will be among the liveliest dreams and warmest anticipations of all its enemies. The danger to the Canadas arising from the vicinity of the United States is a geographical one, and must therefore remain; unless indeed the tide of ambition should turn, and instead of the North American States conquering the Canadas it should happen that the Canadas conquer the States. Power has commonly issued from the coldest regions, and settled in those which are more sumpy. If the present strength of the North gives no promise that the balance will incline in favour of the Canadas, even the strength of the United States does not justify the absolute confidence that they can con destitute army might be arrested at every a destitute army might be arrested at every step.

It is not, perhaps, in the nature of Governments which embody and express iteas so opposite as Royalty and Republicanism willingly to tolerate each other side by side. They ever seek occasions to weaken, defame, and destroy each other. Besides this natural hostility between principles of government in restless conflict, the loss of the South would influence the North by inflaming the would influence the North by inflaming the desire to redress the balance of power. In truth, though the Northern and Western States of America would be formidable to any enemy that should attack them, their influence in Europe would be considerably weakened by the competition of American rivals who could speak with equal authority.

The universal notion of the North is, that by diplemacy or by the sword—by the will of the Canadians or in despite of it—these territories will become part of the Union, and that from the Gulf of St. Lawrence to the Pacific there will be hereafter not a flag aloft to represent he British power.

But in America, as elsewhere, there are But in America, as elsewhere, there are honourable, quiet, treaty-loving people, who neither for Canada nor for any other possession would break the peace of the world or violate the rights of nations. They may have their idea. It may present itself among the probabilities of the future, but they neither passionately desire its realisation nor do anything to promote it. It is possible that the bulk of the settled inhabitants do not desire annexation. It happens, however, that the destinies of a nation are not in the hands of the people considered at large, but I the hands of that section who with a resolut purpose seek by special organisation and uniform movement to accomplish it. The inert dead weight finally to those who watch it with the greatest intelligence, and seize the fitting opportunity to fix it.

In spite of these sentiments of moderation, there are always men who make their fortune by a crisis and a cry, and the "annexation" of Canada—a word of American meaning—will some time or other meet the demands of a powerful party, for in spite of the mass of mind on either side of the St. Lawrence, a small minority may prevail.

It is probable, however, that the United States will not desire war with England until the reduction of the South shall be admitted to be hopeless. The Canadas, therefore, may have time to make those preparations which will enable them to defend their own soil and main-tain their connection with the British Crown. It is obvious that to secure this prepara-tion great sacrifices of time and money must be made. When recently a rupture was threatened between England and the States, the American population seemed to respond with great earnestness and vigour to Royal appeals. When, however, the question came whether militia should be embodied commensurate to the wants of the country, and essential even for the first stages of defence, the Parliament shrunk from the cost and intimated its reliance upon the valour and treasure of Great Britaia.

The strong demonstrations in favour of the British connection made by large portions of the people would seem to indicate a settled conviction; but the circumstances did not admit an opposite sentiment to show itself in a form undisguised. There are only two tolerated methods of expressing a sentiment involving a question of loyalty to Government—acclama-tions in its favour, and silence. The presence of an invading army would give an opportunity to treason to utter itself, and unless a wonderful retreason to utter itself, and unless a wonderful revolution has changed the minds of a large number of the inhabitants of those provinces, there is no small minority who would rejoice at the disappearance of British power. They have made its ruin the subject of their morning and evening wows. It has been the exordium and peroration of every speech—the toast at every feast. It has been the burden of every curse. Unless from that love of combat which leads men to fight always where fighting is possible, it might be imagined that the tender of help to extirpate the British power would be hailed with rapture and song.

It is used as to say that all this enmity is groundless—that it sometimes assumes the character of invanity. People who have never felt than have already died in the service. It is such passions look on with amazement, and It is used to say that all this enmity is groundless—that it sometimes assumes the character of insanity. People who have never felt such passions look on with amazement, and hardly secognise the voice of humanity. But there is no accounting for the passions of mankind, and the only method of curing an inveterate idea is by finding its butterness in its fruit. It may be discovered hereafter that the mild and forbearing sceptre of a Queen—although a British Queen sceptre of a Queen-although a British Queen-was far more favourable to liberty than the bludgeon of a mob, where every one wore the cap of liberty, and indulged the utmost license of a many headed despotism. On the other hand, there are many whose attachment to the British connection has all the force and freshness of a rewly-discovered truth. Mr. M. Gran, who sequired celebrity in the Young Ireland disturbances of 1848, has placed himself foremost among many of his countrymen of similar history to claim the protection and to support the authority of the British Crown. No one who saw Ireland in its deep distress and authority of the British Crown. No one who saw Ireland in its deep distress and knew the causes which produced chronic disorders there would push home the question of this inconsistency, or ascribe it to any other cause than a wider survey of mankind and more fortunate surroundtegs. It may be that such men, whose influence ought to be strengthened by their experience, will keep true to the British connecion men of less instructed or placable spirit.

The obligation of England to prevent the stverance of the Canadas will depend upon the Canadas themselves. To hold them against their own will would be clearly no part of her cuty or her interest. The Canadas have now obtained strength and consistency to judge for themselves; and whether they may account independence which will make their assume an independence which will make their assume an independence which will make their policy and future career a matter to be determined hereafter, or whether they will set up a monarchial form of government and accept a prince of our Royal house—or whether they will remain for weal or woe a dependency of the British Crown;—whatever may be their future lot, it will to a large extent be at their own disposal and in their own keeping so far as Great Britain is concerned. Her honour as a nation will not permit her to desert those who nation will not permit her to desert those who claim her kindred, much less those who suffer in her cause; but her protection may be re-pudiated as distinctly by a refusal to co-operate with her policy as by any formal instrument asserting an absolute independence.

As was expected, the first result of the assem-bling of Parliament at Auckland has been the defeat of the Ministry- a defeat that has only been postponed by postponing the opportunity for it. In the vice regal speech this delay is apologised for, on the ground that the peculiar exigencies of the country called for such prompt and energetic measures that the Executive was obliged to devote itself exclusively to administrative action, and was unable to bear the diver-sion of parliamentary business. In other words, having a policy which they wished to enforce, and not caring to expose it to the risk of being meddled with by Parliament or reversed by their successors, they took advantage of their possession of power to commit the colony up to a certain point. The adverse vote of the Assembly is to be taken, we presume, more as the expression of an already formed determination to change the personnel of the Ministry than as indicating any tendency to a reversal of their war policy. Next to committing the colony to the cost of importing additional Imperial troops, the chief act of the late Government was troops, the chief act of the late Government was to invite volunteers from the neighbouring colonies by the promise of a grant of land for military service. This promise necessarily involves for its fulfilment the seizure of native lands forfeited by rebellion. But whatever local objections there may be to some of the particular men who have inaugurated this solice. policy, there can surely be very little to the policy itself. There can be very few persons, policy itself. There can be very few persons, and they must belong to extinct political parties, who are not now of the opinion that this is the only course open. The political strife, in fact, is less as to the general policy to be pursued than as to the get of men who shall be intrusted with the task of carrying it out.

Whatever diversity of opinion may exist as to the wisdom of conceding everything to the ting extravagant assumptions on their part, none can exist now. The natives themselves have forced all the questions at issue between the races to a decisive settle-ment, and have prevented their being any longer left in abeyance. Every rocent concession has been treated as an act of fear, every attempt at reconciliation has been insultingly strempt at reconcination has been insultingly spurned, and every approach towards restoring the status quo has been resisted. The clergy, to whose pilotage it is partly due that they have drifted to their present position, are unable any longer to control them. They are bent on throwing off the British yoke, and even indulge the draw of a realling the cleaning a literature. the dream of expelling the colonists altogether. and of recovering the whole territory once more for the exclusive occupation of their own race. No reasoning, no mediation, no cajolery, no threats avail to shake this determination, and they insist on settling the supre-macy of race by the arbitrament of the sword. To the contest there can, of course, be but one conclusion. They must be conquered by superiority of numbers, even if they were not by superiority of strategy and armament. Their resources in men and material are limited, while the resources of their opponents are practically unlimited. Every battle in which they engage is a defeat, because they cannot replace the warriors that fall. The utmost that it lies in their power to do is to prolong the contest. All their skill in defence, all their nimbleness in evading capture, can only postpone the inevitable issue. But in the interest of the colony, and in the interest of the natives themselves, it is desirable to bring about this conclusion as quickly as possible. It is not necessary to ex-terminate the native population, it is only neces-sary thoroughly to disposees them of the idea that resistance can be successful. Submission, that resistance can be successful. Submission, however unwelcome it may be, will come when they find that they are hopelessly overpowered. This conviction can only be forced upon them by confronting them with a decidedly superior force. It was expedient, therefore, to gather from the neighbouring colonies all the available volunteer strength that could be collected, and the only way of doing this was by offering rewards in land in consideration of military service. The volunteers that have already come forward have shown that this offer already gone forward have shown that this offer was attractive, and the usefulness of the volunwas attractive, and the usefulness of the volunteers, now that they are on the spot, is a justification of the policy of inviting them. One of the first acts of the new Ministry should be deliberately to ratify the pledges given to these volunteers. It will be remembered that attempts were made in letters from Auckland to damp the ardour of volunteers by warning them that the recruiting Government was on its last legs, was not authorised to make the promises it did, and would not be able to make them good. The volunteers, however, influenced such a gross set of repudiation as would ruin the credit of the colony for ever. But as some over-sealous politicians have volunteered to insinuate that such a breach of faith would be possible, it would be as well for the new Govern-ment, both for its own reputation and that of the colony, to disown all intention of receding from the terms proclaimed.

Whether the vice-regal speech on opening Parliament was the speech of the GOYERNOR, or the speech of his Ministers, or a joint production, is not very clear. But if Sir GEORGE GRAY did : ot personally approve of the words be uttered, some mode of indicating his dissent he uttered, some mode of indicating his dissent would have been adopted. On the supposition that the speech expressed his views, it is a virtual acknowledgment that his conciliatory policy, since his return to the colony, has been based on an erroneous estimate of the temper of

A change of Government in a time of war is always an evil. Unity of purpose, prompti-tude of action, harmony between the Executive and the Legislature, and between the civil and military powers, are essential to rapid and deci-sive success. We had hoped by this stramer to have heard of the capture of Moremere; we have instead the news of a Ministerial crisis. We trust, however, that the change, as now effected, will be final till the war is closed, and that the extreme party zeal of those who may be dissatisfied with it will be kept in abeyance till the return of peace makes political strife no longer an aid to the enemy.

DEPUTATION.—ALTERATION OF RATLWAY CHARGE.

—A deputation of gentlemen interested in the trade of the Hunter River, consisting of Mr. Close, M. L.A., Mr. Sad-lett, M. L.A., Mr. Allen, M. L.A., Mr. A. B. Portus, and Mr. P. J. Cohen, waited pesterday morning upon the Minister for Works with reference to the alterations that had recently been made in the rates for the conveyance of produce. The deputation presented a protest that had teen adopted at a public meeting held at Morpoth, and signed by forty-twe residents in the district. The document as fourth that the patitioners protested against the term adopted at a public meeting held at Morpoth, and signed by forty-two residents in the district. The document set forth that the patitioners protested against the reveat attentions in the railway rates on the broad principle that it was undestrable and derogatory to the dignity of a Government to enter into special competition with private enterprise—that such a glaring departure from the generally recognised principle of classification of goods for transit as exemplified in the new rates upon wool and hay, to foster the interests of any special line of railway was utjust alike to the other customers of the railway and to the public generally that an injustice had been indicated by these alterations in the lowering of the railway charges to an unremunerative rate, and in tending to thwart private enterprise in the furtherance of steam communication, that the rates were hitheret deemed moderate, and ought not to have been altered without solicitation from the general public—the experiment of lowering the railway rates having already been tried by Mr. Regar with results that clearly showed the failacy of such a policy. The potition further represented that, according to the present rates, it would be impossible to frame an equitable scale of charges for the short line of railway from Matinant to Morpeth, now rapidly approaching, inassuatch as it being alleged that the carrying of wool from East Maritand to Morpeth on the new line, when completed, should not be more than one pump per bale, which was palpably abourd. For these reasons, the petitioner desired to call the Minister's attention to the necessity for an immediate revision of the railway rates. The protest having been rad, the deputation pointed out the injury that would be done to Morpeth as to Matitand, an avangument with which the deputation expressed thanselves perfectly satisfied. Some further conversation area respecting the site of the station at Morpeth, but a tothing definite was arranged, and Mr. Helroyd promised shoulty to go up to Morpeth, MANAM HAIMMRADER'S CONCERT.—To whatever cause the obscumentance may be owing, some of the catever for the amuseums of the Sydney public have not lattedly received a very encouraging amount of patronage; and we regret to include amongst the number the stainted nusclosus who last evening gave, an entertainment at the Sohool of Arts. The circumstance is the more to be regretted because the encourse which the Alpine and Tyrolese Minetrels have been giving are well worthy of public support. The lengthaned paried that these artistes appear to have been before the public is a sufficient guarantee that their powers of entertaining an andience have been well tested; and their performances in this city certainly deserved to have been well attended—more sepacially as they have been seiseted in their concerts by two accomplished Sydney semeteurs, fellow-countrymen of their own. Siz.—I do not pretend to deny that the subject to which I have sought to direct public attention through your columns, is one on which the best informed per-your columns, is one on which the best informed persons may be greatly divided in opinion. I am not therefore, surprised that your intelligent correspondent "6" should take the view of it dia netrically opposed to mine. I cannot, however, see the ground on which he pronounces "the present time 'ill-suized' to the discussion," unless it be his opinion that the question of "payment of members" ought never to be discussed. If the question is to be discussed at all, it cannot, I unagine, be discussed too so.n., nor are we likely to have a better time for its discussion that during a short recase, which will be followed by a

No one should have a seat in that House who is not in the possession of a considerable income.

All must admit the truth of your correspondent's description of the popular man of our time, contemptible and disgusting as it is —

"Its true, and pity tos, 'us true."

But it is to remedy this evil that I propose the payment of members, not from the ordinary revenue, but from a fund created by the fees which I would demand from the voters either at the time of registration or election, as might be found most convenient. This tax would probably cut off a large portion of the most worthless roters; it would thus make way for some of those "parties and pecuniary independence" who "strink from the degrading ordeal" at present; and it would bring into the field a class who are not so well provided for, but who, if their loss of time were made up to them would appeal in good English to the con mon sense of the real electors, so sinst the frontly decisamation, detestable grammar, and still more wiretched logic of the men so well described by my opponent. But this is not all. It is the hunger of the present men, rather than their igaorance and want of principle, that does all the mischief. It is this that make steem either support everything on the one hand, or oppuse everything on the other. Give them their "wages," and even men like these would, for the most part, become, if not useful, at least harmless. There are "tittlebath "even in the House of Commons, but they have "ten thousand a-year," and nobody hears a word about ten till some noveliat " wants a hero." And I do firmly believe that there are some very exceptionable members of the present huse who, if they were placed a little more at their ease, would make an effort to improve their minds and fit themselves, in some degree, for a position for which they are now thoroughly unquilified. At present they have no desire for self improvement—they can hardly wait a decent time for an opportunity of being shelved by an appointment, and the consequence is what we all see an opportunity of being shelved by an appointment, and the consequence is what we all see, and hear, and deplore.

Your correspondent thinks that "the present state of our finances" must reduce the purchasing power of Government, and we may reckon (apart from any hopes of purer administration) that the lecches will drop off when there is livtle blood to be drawn. If this be so, the very best thing the late Government did was to get our finances into confusion, and they will be, I believe, the first Ministers who deserved statues for ruining their country! There is, however, I gladly admit, some foundation for this hope. I am estisfied that the present Government will make an effort to govern without corruption, and the state of the finances will be a powerful sid to them in alleneing importunity; but it is to be hoped that they will succeed in re-establishing our financial health, and when this is effected it remains to be seen whether say Government will be allowed to exist without practising that "liberality" for which the late Government got so much credit. Let us hope for the best; but in the meantime I would say, avert, if you can, the possible worst, by providing members with a small allowance from the electoral fund. It matters nothing to argue that there is now "very little to be go ten." If men have resolved to get or to turn out the Government who will not give. If it is necessary to give, then I say give openly and homestly a small remuneration for services performed, such as they are.

Your correspondent asks, "Would not the payment of members furnish a Ministry with a strong additional motive to unconstitutional interference with elections? A member returned by Government influence would be a paid adherent," &c. This objection, I think, is quite destitute of force. If the payment were in any way dependent on the member's support of the Government—if the Government could withdraw the payment, there would be something in it; but such would not be the case. The very object of the payment is to make the member independent; and such I believe would be its.effect. The member would be accarer in his seat, and his pay, than the Government could be in theirs; he would have nothing to hope or fear from them; and such being the case, it would be easy for him to assume virtue if he had it not, and vote on the right side.

Your correspondent finally asks "how the proposed measure would affect the modicum of independent thought and action yet surviving in the As-emb y?" I answer, it would make the independent just a trifle nore independent, and that is all. I do not see that gentlemen where I have seen receiving small professional fees, small fees at board meetings, and small fees in jurces, need turn up their noses at even a less sum than "£300 a year." The last member of the House of Commons who was known to have drawn his "wages" was the celebrated Andrew Marvel, and I do not believe that a more independent man ever existed in any age or country. "4" denies that the colony is so destitute as I supposed of men combining leisure with pecuniary independence; but as he admits that "they shruk from

***ENTRY V. PROWN

This was an action for a balance of account for carriage of goods, a rvices by thaintiff and his son, &. The defendant pleaded payment, art-off, and claim by cross action.

Mr. Durby appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Stephen for the defendant.

The plaintiff was a carrier, the defendant a squaster, publican, and storekeeper at Cannonbar. The case was one of disputed account. The plaintiff's calim was for carriage and services. The defendant's set-off was for payments and supplies, and it was contended that plaintiff and his son (a boy of fourteen) had been simply living about defendant's place—the plaintiff's wife and daughter being in defendant's place—the plaintiff's wife and daughter being in defendant's place—the plaintiff's wife and daughter being that the plaintiff's action of the charges were disputed. The plaintiff's total claim was for CSI, but it was admitted that payment had been nade, in mency or goods, to the extent of CSI 12s. The concept was so to the balance, £27 is, defendant extending that plaintiff had been sufficiently paid. The evidence was conflicting.

Business during the week has been quiet, and with exception of some orders from the neighbouring colonies of New Zealand and Queensland, the transactions that have taken place have not been of any magnitude, nor have we any material alteration in prices to record. There is evidently still some distrust on the part of the mercantile community, and until this feeling has wern away a certain check must be given to business. The commercial news from England is regarded as very satisfactory. In the first place the wool market is firmer, and there is every likelihood of higher rates being obtained. at the November sales. The prices ruling for tallow and hides are also higher. There is a decrease in the shipmen's to the colonies, and this may tend to give some improvement to our markets, which have been depressed in consequence of heavy stocks. The flour market is firmer, but prices rule the same as last week. In liquids, there has been some inquiry for bulk ale at a slight advance, but spirits and wines are ale at a sight advance, on spirited. Teas: There has been some demand for half-chests of common congous at rates ranging from £6 to £7 Good has been some demand for half-chests of common congous at rates ranging from £6 to £7. Good congous are quoted at £8 to £9 per chest. Sugars are hardly so firm, and prices have ruled easier. In rice there has been very little doing, and Patna is still quoted at £19 to £20 per ton. Salt is a little firmer; Liverpool, £3 5s. per ton; fine, £4 15s. to £5 per ton. In other articles of daily consumption there is no hing new to report.

remains comment to on the proceedings of the meeting of luyers of produce, on the I ith instant, as reported in your lines of yesterday.

This meeting was pursuant to either two, the first of which took place to the 23rd ultimo, and the according which took place to the 23rd ultimo, and the according which the present special products are consider any other accioners was faviled by circular, signed by the chairman of a committee appointed at the first meeting, and we attended accordingly. The object of the conference was "To consider what heneficial alterations might be made in the present system of conducting public sales of produce." A lengthened discussion ensued, and it was determined that the present system of conducting public sales of produce." A lengthened discussion ensued, and it was determined the the alternations desired by the gentleman who had originated the movement should be submitted by written creater the according and alternations were as follow—

1s. That sales of weed and sheepshine be all conducted on one day, and sales of tallow, hides, &c., on one other day in each week.

2nd. That all preduce be open for inspection on the mornings of such day of sele, and be sold by the respective sentisevers sentime on the afternoons of such days in the Chamber of Commerce, or such other office or place of business as may hereafter be agreed upon.

1d. That greater facilities than at present scales be given to buyers for the inspection of wool or other produce catalogued for sale.

the Chawler of Commerce, or such other office or place of business as may bereafter be agreed apon.

Ind Ind greater facilities than at present exist be given to buy as for the inspection of wool or other produce cating und form.

On receipt of the circulars containing these proposals, he austinesses met, and unanimously expressed themselves in favour of conceding all, except the removal of the place of she Messes. Most and Co., merely requesting a brief chapter for the product of the place of she Messes. Most and Co. considered it due to the finner as originator of the austion sales of produce, and to the latter as having the precent charge of their sales, that they should be consulted.

It togat to the question of soiling at the Chamber of Commerce or at some place apart from the Produce Stores, there was a prevalence of opinion that such a change might be deficited to by the sellers, and not without considerable assets.

The result of this conference was communicated by letter in the Chamber of Commerce or at some place apart from the Produce Stores, they was a prevalence of opinion that such a change might be deficited to by the sellers, and not without considerable assets.

The result of this conference was communicated by letter in the Chamber of Committee of Buyers, and on the it hastait, Messes. That her flowers have no fragrance, her birds have no song.
Who say of Australia, say an untruth,
That the eye of her maiden, the heart of her youth,
Vie not with the graces so fabled of old
Whose beauties the poets of Europe unfold.
Let Oxford and Cambridge the old world pursue,
But give me the graces I see in the New.
Of earth's fairest beauties what beauties can vie
With these that smile 'neath an Australian sky !

COAL, COAL.—Is Colonial equal to best English?

Try the Anvil Creek (hitherto called Branaton) coal. This seam, istaly opened, is the lowest in the geological review of any yst discovered, and possesses gropy rates peculiar to lited!—viz., great hesting powers, very little smoke and seh, and no clinker whatever. As a household coal, it atands unnivalised, and is pronounced by those who have used it for steam and gas purposes the best the colony has yet produced—one ton being equal to one ton sed a third of the hitherto best colonial. From its hardness, it will stand any amount of knocking about, and needs only a trial to be used by all who study comfort, classifiness, and economy. To be had, in any quantity, from WARBURTON and SON, sole agents. Pyrmont Wharf.

COAL, CHEAP COAL, GOOD COAL.—

Those first-class nud fatt-sing squattages in the Bligh District, know as Pretty Plains, Carwell No. 1, Carwell No. 2, Warren Watenbok, Boker No. 2.

These valuable properties are splendidly watered, they enjoy a frontage of 22 miles to the Marthagay Creek, and one of the runs has a frontage to the Marthagay with a six mile frontage to the herri Merri Circk.

The fame etipoed by these stations and cattle is not slow a hown to every caroase butcher in this colony, but it extends to Gipps Land, in Victoria. The Murray and Murrumbidgee equatter acrosses turboles in the solony, but it extends to Gipps Land, in Victoria. The Murray and Murrumbidgee equatter knows right, well the value of this berd. The Parroo equatier, and the Levistham Fort Coper equater of the far north in the Leichhardt District, all combined, are ready at all times to purchase surplus cattle at the highest prices from these noted runs, both far ber dispared and fattening purposes.

The stations join those famous fattening properties of Ribert-Lowa Kerg, Mesers. Bennett, Gibson, and Judg, and they are only remote about 15 miles from Mesers. Wentworth and Christy's noted Macquarie establishments. The improvements are in excilent order; there are Jurgoed decling on the various runs. There is a dam which cost £800; this was made to prevent the possibility of a failure of the water. There are stockyards, lanes, pena, branding yards, awinging gates, &c.

PRELIMINARY ADVERTISEMENT.

THE ASH ISLAND ESTATE, RIVER HUNTER. Beyond doubt one of the very FINEST AGRICULTURAL and HORTICULTURAL RSTATES in the AUSTRALIAN COLONIES.

ORT and CO. have received instructions from the Honorable A. W. Scott, Esq., to sell by public action, at Newcastle, on an early date, of which due n.tice will be given, by public suction, at Newcastle, on an early date, of which due n.tice will be given.

The whole of the TRULY MAGNIFICENT ESTATE, known as ASH ISLAND, comprising an area of 3841 ACRES, with many miles river frontages to the RIver Hunter, distant only 48 MILES FROM NEWCASTLE, and including the homestead, with gardens, orangery, extensive cultivation, grass and other lands, and a large number of farms, many of which are enclosed, cleared, and have conventient buildings upon them.

This sphendid property has been recently must carefully surveyed and subdivided, and it will be sold in farms to suit all classes of purchasers. The object of the present preliminary advertisement is simply to announce TO THE AGRICULTURAL INTEREST the fact that it will shortly be submitted to public competition, in order that all who may be on the look-out for homesteads, may avail themselves of an opportunity, the like of which has never before been presented to them.

Among the many claims which the Ash Liand Estate possesses, suitiling it to be looked upon as one of the finest retates in the colonies, the following few are sufficient for the present purpose.

1. THE 801L is composed of RICH ALLUVIAL

OATS. ALL KINDS OF VEGETABLES, and COTTON—the growth of the latter being particularly vigorous.

2. The FACILITIES OF WATER and LAND CARRIAGE are as great as could possibly be wished for. The ewate has a vast extent of frontage to the river itunter, with any extent of deep water, to enable vessels to load direct from the spot. On the other hand, the GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY passes along the shipcest river bank, at the back of the estate, and secures the most perfect land carriage.

3. 178 FROXIMITY TO NEWCASTLE (the second year shipping post of New South Walses), to Rast and west Maitiand, Raymond Terrace, and Morpeth, and particularly.

TO THE NUMEROUS COLLIERIES, ensures a ready market for all kinds of produce—further secured by the facilities for export to all the markets and exaports of New South Walse and the sejecent colonies.

4. TRE COAL.—From various experiments at different places, bade by careful boring, coal of excellent quality has been invariably found, showing that the seam underlying the whole island would probably prove a good working one, and, from the position, well adapted for iterpensive shipment, no engineering difficulty existing, and deep water funiage along the river banks.

5. The Estate is NOT LIABLE TO BE FLOODED—a very material feature to all who have had any experience of farming in this colony.

With these few facto before them, all who are in want of a farm, or home for their families, are invited to avail themselves of the forthcoming opportunity.

Full particulars will be shortly published, including terms and day of sale.
